

Abstract

This paper considers religious education through the principle of religious neutrality which should be compared with the principle of political neutrality, on which I have published my note in the English journal, Learning for Democracy, Vol. 2, No. 3, 2006, Critical Press (its Japanese version is included in this paper).